HOMES MUST PROVE CENTER LEAGUE

Prominent English Statesmen
Say Great Antagonism
Against Admittance of Germany Until She Repents.

BY VICTOR M'NAUGHT.
LONDON, Feb. 7. (Special Correspondence.)—Weeks probably will elapse from the time this is written before anything like a really definite and final program will emerge from the peace conference. It may be of interest, therefore, to quote the views of a leader of conservative English opinion, A. H. Mann, editor of the London Evening Standard. While not speaking in an official way, Mr. Mann probably reflects the views of such men as Arthur Balfour and Bonar Law. Likely enough these opinions are undergoing a process of moderation, but American readers may at least gather from them an idea of the conservative outlook upon peace.

A mutual friend arranged a luncheon engagement for Mann and me. We proceeded at once to inform each other of the public feeling in our respective countries.

"You have seen how the English people received President Wilson," said Mann. "There isn't a bit of doubt about his very great popularity here. We have some fear, though, that idealism that fits America so well may not be altogether practical on this side. For example, the idea of nations first and then make peace terms afterward. That would not suit us at all. Germany is not repentant and still maintains that her armies were not beaten. A proposal that Germany should be admitted at once into a league of nations would arouse great antagonism here."

While no one else can speak for the president, I ventured to assure Mann that Americans had no idea that Mr. Wilson would venture upon such a program as had been suggested. Opinion in America seems to favor admitting Germany into a league of nations only after Germany has penitently proved her fitness to belong. A long time might elapse before this could come about.

Mann outlined some of the things that conservative Englishmen hope to see come out of the peace conference.

Pay Big Indemnity.

"Germany should be made to pay a big indemnity," he said, "an indemnity that would require 50 years to liquidate. In the meantime, Germany's war debt should be made to wait. Perhaps it would be repudiated. We don't care. We favor an export tax on German manufactures. That is to say, the German government should tax everything shipped out of the country and devote the proceeds to the indemnity. This would mean a 10-hour day for German workmen, as against the eight-hour day in other countries. I suppose, but that would be a part of the penalty that the German masses would have to bear for supporting the war."

"France requires guarantees against German aggression in the future. Germany should not be allowed to hold any bridgeheads on the west side of the Rhine. I think that all German territory west of the Rhine should be taken and held by France for at least 10 years."

"If Germans can not pacify themselves and come to some agreement, I believe that the allies should intervene in Germany, seize Berlin and set up a stable government."

"The subject of a big navy for America came up. 'Britishers have no forebodings along that line,' he said. 'The larger the British navy, the more secure the British world will be in the future. Of course, but they will always be competitors with us. I am sure that America and Britain will always stand shoulder to shoulder when any big issue arises.'"

Of course, but they will always be competitors with us. I am sure that America and Britain will always stand shoulder to shoulder when any big issue arises.'"

"What party does Premier Lloyd George belong to?" Mann was asked. "We have been told that he is a new center party." Was the reply, "A strong, modern party, with progressive principles, up-to-date and plenty of energy for the big problems of reconstruction. This party would be neither Tory nor radical. Just now we can not tell how the political situation will eventually resolve itself."

Tells a Secret

Manufacturer of Famous Medicine Tells Ingredients, So Public Can Appreciate Pure, Reliable Medicine.

Many people fear to take medicine to check and abort colds, cure coughs, catarrhs, etc. This fear is groundless with all the products of The Blackburn Products Co., Dayton, Ohio. Not one contains opiates, narcotics or harmful drugs. Mentho-Laxene, for coughs, colds, catarrhs and all distress following a cold, is a compound of Wild Cherry, Tolu, Cascarilla, Grindella, Menthol, Anise, and other natural ingredients sufficient to preserve and keep in solution. Every ingredient is in concentrated form and the medicine is so strong that only ten-drop doses are to be taken in the "raw" state. But the ideal way is to make into syrup by smutting a 2% oz. bottle of Mentho-Laxene into a pint bottle and then fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made by dissolving a pint of sugar in a half pint of boiling water. It is said by thousands that this makes a most effective home treatment for all cold troubles. The manufacturer guarantees it to please or money back. Sold by all good druggists.

Russian Bishop Is Thrown Into River With Rock On Foot

VLADIVOSTOK, Feb. 7. (Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Bishop Hermogen, of Tobolsk, was tortured and injured by Bolsheviks according to a private letter received here. Since the early days of Bolshevism the bishop had fearlessly denounced their work, and for this was forbidden to preach. The aged churchman defied the Bolsheviks, and in his preaching displayed greater energy than ever in condemning the soviet authorities. The Bolsheviks arrested him and took him to Ekaterinburg. Thereupon the population of Tobolsk province, who greatly revered their bishop, sent a delegation to demand his liberation. The Czech-Slovaks at that time began to occupy Siberia and the Bolsheviks feared to provoke the peasants of Tobolsk. They released the bishop and started him back to Tobolsk under escort of red guard troops. A steamer was provided and the delegation triumphantly as far as Kairovsk village. Here they met a steamer carrying the Czech-Slovaks, or white guards. Rather than have the bishop liberated by them, the red guard decided to kill him. The old man was beaten and forced to carry heavy burdens of ammunition during the flight of the convoy. When he could go no farther, says the informant, his torturers tied a rock to his feet and threw him into the river. The body was recovered later by his people and given burial in Tobolsk.

Physician Explains Who Should Take Nuxated Iron

Practical Advice On How To Help Build Up Great Strength, Energy and Endurance.

Commenting on the use of Nuxated Iron as a tonic strength and blood builder by over three million people annually, Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (outdoor Dept.), New York, and in the Westchester County Hospital, said: "Blood of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily flustered, but it utterly robs him of his vitality and that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. It may also transform a beautiful, sweet-tempered woman into one who is cross, nervous and irritable. I have strongly emphasized the great necessity of physicians making blood examinations of their patients. Thousands of persons suffer from a physical weakness and a highly nervous condition due to lack of sufficient iron in their red blood corpuscles without ever realizing the real and true cause of their trouble. Without iron in your blood your food merely passes through the body something like corn through an old mill with rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind."

For want of iron you may be an old man at 30, dull of intellect, poor in memory, nervous, irritable and all "run down," while at 50 or 60 with plenty of iron in your blood you may still be young in feeling, full of life, your whole being brimming over with vim and energy."

HOW ENGLAND CARES FOR CRIPPLED SOLDIERS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Superintendent A. C. Baker, of Queen Mary's workshops, relates an interesting account of his experience in "retraining crippled ex-service men." In the December issue of the Monthly Labor Review, published by the department of labor.

Queen Mary's workshops are operated in connection with the Pavilion military hospital at Brighton, England. "The patients at the Pavilion military hospital are soldiers who have undergone amputation of one or more limbs. They come to this hospital as soon as they are able to leave the base hospital, but while they are still in need of medical treatment. By the joint operation of workshops and hospital, the men receive the curative effects of industrial work, at the same time they are being given medical treatment."

The workshops classes afford instruction in such things as fitting and turning, mechanical, metal fitting and turning, electrical engineering, commercial subjects, aviation, picture machine operating, cabinetmaking, literary and general, and shoe making and repairing, tailoring, mechanical drafting, carving and letter cutting, stained glass work, and designing.

The superintendent is of the opinion that instructors in this retraining must be specially fitted for their duties, since he does not think that the usual methods of vocational instruction are satisfactory.

The soldier patient, on leaving the Pavilion military hospital, goes to Roehampton, in the suburbs of London, where he is fitted with an artificial limb. When he is discharged from Roehampton, arrangements are made for him with his local war pensions committee for his return to civil life and the continuation of his training. Mr. Baker says that it is just at the time of the man's return to civil life that special effort should be made to keep up the man's interest in his industrial training. "This is the psychological moment, and it is of the utmost importance that facilities should be afforded for the student to take up his old course under very favorable conditions. Once he is allowed to drift at this point it is so easy for him to fall back into idle habits and all the former part of the training is lost."
